THE JOLLY OLD PEDAGOGUE.
BY GEORGE MEXLIN
"Twas a jolly old pedagogue, long ago, Tall and slender, and sallow and dry;
His form was bent and his gait was slow, His long thin hair was white as snow,
But a wonderful twinkle shone in his eye,
And he sang every night, as he went to bed,
"Let us be happy down here below; The living should live tho' the dead be dead."

Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago,
He taught his scholars the rule of three,
Writing and reading, and history, too;
He took the little ones on his knee, For a kind old heart in his breast had he,
And the wants of the littlest child he knew.

"Learn when you're young," he often said;
"There's much to enjoy down here below; Live for the living and rest for the dead,"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

With the stupidest boy he was kind and cool, Speaking only in gentle tones;
The red wax lightly known in his school—Whispering to him, was a barbarous rule, And too hard work for his poor old bones; Beside, it was painful, he sometimes said,
"We must make life pleasant here below; The living need charity more than the dead,"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

He lived in the house by the hawthorn lane, With the roses and woodbine over the door;
His room was quiet, and neat and plain,
But a spirit of comfort there held reign, And made him forget he was old and poor.

"I need a little," he often said,
"And my friends and relatives here below Won't litigate over me when I'm dead,"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

Then the jolly old pedagogue's wrinkled face Melted all over in smiling smiles; He stirred his glass with an old school glass.

Chucked and sipped, and prattled apace, Till the house grew merry from cellar to files.
"I'm a pretty old man," he gently said, "I have lingered a long time here below; But my heart is fresh if my youth is dead,"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

He smoked his pipe in the balmy air Every night when the sun went down, While the soft wind played in his silvery hair.

Leaving his tenderest kisses there On the jolly old pedagogue's jolly old crown;
And feeling the kisses he smiled and said,
"Twas a glorious world down here below; Why wait for happiness till we are dead?"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

He sat in his door one midsummer night,
And the sun had sunk in the west,
And the lingering beams of golden light Made his kindly old face look warm and bright.

While the odoriferous night wind whispered rest!
Gently, gently, he bowed his head, Till there angels waiting for him, I know.

He was sure of his happiness, living or dead,
This jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

FOOTSTEPS AT THE DOOR.
BY MRS. E. M. CONKLIN.
The day is done and swift dawns nigh
The twilight hour, serene and sweet; The busy crowds go hurrying by With steady tread of thronging feet, In many a home glad watchers wait,
As they have waited oft before,
To hear a hand upon the gate,
And well known footsteps at the door!

Some list for feet, still and cold, No more the paths of life may tread,
And miss the strong arms loving fold,
The tender words so often said, Alas for such! the desolate!
Who halt expectant, as of yore, Still child the foolish heart that wait To hear the footsteps at the door!

Still pass the thronging myriads by, Nor heed the mourners, watching lone:
The babes who for the father cry;
The wives whose light of life is gone, And some their sadder virgins keep For living ones, mourning sore, And listening, fear, and waiting, weep,
And dread their footsteps at the door!

A verdant youth who walked from the south side of Holmes county to Wooster a few days ago, says: "Golly, if the world is as big 'tween you as it is the way I came it must be a whopper."

INDEPENDENT.

S. M. LANDIS, M. D., of Philadelphia, the zealous and thorough reformer of mankind generally, some time since published a medical work entitled The Secrets of Generation, in which he freely expresses his views, as a medical man. Having little respect for conservative medical authority, he criticises old dogmas without much mercy for their theory.
This has brought them down on Dr. Landis, and he has been arrested and tried by the stiffest forms of Pennsylvania courts, on a charge of circulating obscene books, though three eminent physicians of that city say his books are not of the character charged, but is a useful and needed work. Nevertheless his accusers put him through the forms of a trial, a jury declares the charges sustained, and the judge sentenced him to pay a fine of five hundred dollars, and imprisonment for one year. Now, Dr. L. may have erred, but this spirit of persecution—for it is that and nothing less—will some day meet with a scorching and deserved rebuke. The trial has been published in pamphlet form by the accusers, and that will open the eyes of its readers.

Lisbon Hours, for March gives a very interesting sketch of Thomas S. Speckman, a native of Philadelphia, and a man of remarkable inventive genius. His last and most signal effort in this direction is to place double draw bridge across the Delaware river, at Philadelphia, where it is some four thousand feet wide. The project is commended by other eminent engineers, and will probably be carried out in a very few years. Other readable articles follow: J.
Trainer King, Publisher, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Dillon for April.—The article "concerning Japanese and their customs is full of information. These people have their peculiarities, and the writer of the article thinks they are about as good, morally, as the rest of mankind. He admires the plain, simple clothing, but making a pillow of a wooden box he could not learn to use. In other respects they are like many civilized people, and that is they sometimes get on a big drunk when they are full of light. Other good reading follows. Boston.

A PALACE OF ICE.
Some of the school geographies make —or did, years ago when we studied them—a brief mention of a famous palace of ice that was once built for the gratification of the Empress Anna of Russia. A writer in Putnam's Magazine thus tells us how it was built and how it looked:

The purest and most transparent ice of the Neva was chosen for the quarry, large blocks were then cut out, and squared by rule and compass, then carved with ornamental designs, as carefully and skillfully as if they had been so much marble. After they had been cut and carved with the greatest accuracy, each block was raised by crane and pulley. At the very moment of lowering it to its destined position, a little water was thrown on the block below. The precise quantity of water was regulated as if it had been so much mortar; if too much were used, the symmetry of the work would be injured. As the water froze, the different rows of blocks became so closely connected together, that, when completed the whole building became one compact mass, looking as if it were chiseled entire from one icy mound. The dimensions of this palace were not large. The front was fifty feet in length, simple in character, and divided into seven compartments by pilasters.
In six of these compartments were large windows, the framework of which was painted to imitate green marble. The ice took the paint perfectly. The paces were thin sheets of ice, beautifully smooth, and transparent as the most costly glass. The central division projected, so as to represent a doorway, surmounted by a Roman arch, and appropriate architectural ornaments. On either side of the door stood a statue of ice, on a high pedestal, and in front was an approach of several steps. This apparent door was in reality, however, but another and larger window, level with the floor. An ornamental balustrade surmounted the front, with an architectural ornament rising in the center, over the doorway and window on each side of it. The roof was sloping, and marked in lines to represent tiles. There were also chimneys, all in ice. The height of the building was twenty-one feet, its depth was eighteen feet.

But the palace itself was not the only wonder; the accessories were complete, and all so much frost-work. A handsome balustrade, apparently of marble, with statues and architectural ornaments, completely surrounded the palace, being eighty-seven feet in length, and thirty-six in width, enclosing a sort of garden, or court, with two handsome gateways in the rear. It was through these gateways that the building was approached. Orange trees, nearly as high as the building, bearing fruits and flowers, with birds on the branches, also adorned the court or garden—trees, flower fruit, leaf and bird being all delicately chiseled out of the same magic marble as the palace itself.

The front approach was guarded by six cannon regularly turned and bored; they stood before the balustrade, three on either side of the doorway. These were also of ice. They were of the caliber which usually receives a charge of three pounds of powder. In addition to these cannons there was also a large mortar on each side of the entrance, of a size prepared for shells of eighty pounds. In advance of these mortars stood two neatly carved dolphins on pedestals. To the left of the palace stood an elephant, large as life, on his back was a man in a Persian dress, while two similar icy figures, one bearing a lance, stood near the animal.

Thus it was that the approach to the Magic Palace was guarded by other magic wonders.

Such was the aspect of the famous palace of ice, when, early in the winter, the Empress and her court came to admire it. The effect was most brilliant.
The palace itself shone like one vast gem of opal, so perfect was the transparency, and so peculiar the blue tint of the fabric. Every part of the building, the statues, the dolphins, the elephant, every leaf, flower and bird, ay, the very cannon were glittering with the ever-changing brilliancy of the many colored prism, with its crimson, green, golden lights.

As the Empress approached, wonders increased. A salute was fired from the icy cannons, and the mortars threw their shells high in the air! Yes, real fire and smoke issued from the magical artillery; and at the same moment the marble like elephant threw up a watery spray, higher than the roof of the palace.

The enchanted portal opened, and the Empress entered a handsome vestibule, whence appeared a lofty room, on either side. In the drawing room stood a table, apparently of marble, supporting a handsome clock, whose icy wheels, daintily cut, were seen beneath the transparent case. Large statues filled the corners of the large room. Seated and sofas, handsomely carved, stood on either side, nor were chairs, footstools, and other smaller pieces of furniture wanting. The sleeping room, or what appeared as such, on the opposite side of the vestibule, was even more luxuriously furnished. There was a grand state bedstead, with its appropriate bed, pillows, counterpane, and, above all, finely worked apparently of lace! There was a dressing-table with its mirror, and many knick knacks, jars and bottles for perfumes and powders, with cups and boxes for trinkets. This table was supported by pretty little caryatides.
On the right was an elegantly carved chamber-piece, and on the hearth were logs of wood ready to kindle. Here and there wreaths of icy flowers hung in festoons.

By night the enchantment appeared still greater. All the windows were illuminated with colored transparencies; nothing could exceed the beautiful effects of the light which filled not only the windows, but the transparent walls of the building itself with a delicate, pearly glow, even more beautiful than the opal tint by day. The elephant was now seen spouting a stream of burning naphtha, a fire-like spray, high in the air, while a man concealed within the hollow body of the creature, by blowing pipes, succeeded in imitating the roar natural to the animal.
Within the palace the icy candles, smoked with naphtha, were lighted, without melting, and the icy logs in the fireplace were kindled in the same way!

A beautiful moonlight view, on still another occasion, was most charming, from the crystal-like character of the palace, and its garden, reflecting a thousand silvery rays. Then, again, fresh falls of snow gave a new charm to the spectacle as every architectural ornament, every twig and leaf, was daintily marked by the soft feathery flakes, of a white more pure than that of the ice on which they fell.

Through the long winter of St. Petersburg, from January to the quinocent days of March, that icy wonder stood on the banks of the Neva. Before April it had vanished, and disappeared again in the bosom of the stream from whence it arose.

A POTENT CHARM.
Twenty-three years ago—or a little over—a man, who was then young, set up in the dry goods and grocery business in a small village in Maine. He was known as a free-hearted, jovial fellow; and as the habits of those times were not such as they are happily now, was quite as ready as any of his neighbors in taking a glass or two of rum. Indeed, his best friends became somewhat alarmed for him, fearing that his fate was likely to become that of a systematic drunkard. One day the clergyman who officiated in the district happened to say in the presence of this man (who undoubtedly had a superstitious quality about him,) that he had a charm of amulet, the possession of which would surely lead a man to competence or fortune. The remark was noted, and great desire was expressed by the person in question to possess such a valuable article.

The clergyman said he had many evidences of the efficacy of the article; but certain sacrifices were demanded of its possessor which he felt afraid his unfortunate friend might promise to make, but would forget to carry out, when the virtue of the charm would depart and never be restored. But this objection was not allowed to stand in the way of the receipt of such a valuable boon as the amulet was to prove, for the strongest promises of fidelity to whatever condition might be imposed were given. The good pastor gave his consent to a trial, and in due time produced a small package, bound in leather, which he gave to the young tradesman, telling him that so long as he kept it about his person, and so long as he never tasted a drop of intoxicating liquor, wealth would begin to come, and continue to flow into his coffers.

The conditions were accepted, and the most faithfully observed, and the amulet worn until a few weeks ago, when he died, a worthy, wealthy man. After his funeral it was found in one of the pockets of his clothing, and opened.
The only thing in it was a circular piece of card on which could be faintly discerned the written words, which constituted the moral of this true tale:
"Temperate Habits are the Surest Sources of Prosperity, and the best Promoters of Virtue."

[From the Technologist, New York.]
The following curious observations in regard to the transmission of sound have been carefully verified by an extended series of experiments: The whistle of a locomotive is heard 3,300 yards through the air; the noise of a railroad train, 2,800 yards; the report of a musket and the bark of a dog, 1, 800 yards; an orchestra or the roll of a drum, 1,600 yards; the human voice reaches to the distance of 1,000 yards; the croaking of frogs, 900 yards; the chirping of crickets, 800 yards. Distinct speaking is heard in the air from below up to a distance of 600 yards; from above, it is only understood to a range of 100 yards. It has been ascertained that an echo is well reflected from the surface of smooth water only when the voice comes from an elevation.

Other similar phenomena connected with the transmission of sound have been observed, but the results disagree either from inaccuracy in the observations or from the varying nature of the circumstances affecting the number obtained. Such variations occur to an extent of 10 or 20 per cent, and even more. The weather's being cold and dry, or warm and wet, are the chief influencing causes. In the first case the sound goes to a greater, and in the second to a lesser distance.

WHO'LL BE DE GOAT?—During the live war soldier of one of the New York regiments, home on a furlough, visited New York City for the first time in his life. Going up one of the streets one night, after paying homage to Baalzebub during the day, he fell in with a crowd of colored people on their way to church.

In his state of incredulity he very naturally went with the crowd into the church, thinking it a theater, and congratulating himself on getting into the house without paying the usual fee, anxiously waited for the curtain to rise. The clergyman arose and said:

"My brethren, in that last great day, when de trump shall blow, and de sheep shall go to de right and de goats to de left, who wants to be de goat?"

After a short pause he said again, raising his voice: "I say, who'll be de goat?"

A long pause followed, when he said in a still louder tone: "Who'll be de goat?"

The soldier, supposing the performance delayed for a person to represent a goat in some play, exclaimed:

"Look here, old fellow, rather than have this thing play out, I'll be goat."

Horace Greeley is a friend of temperance and at the same time an ardent politician. What he said in a late article on the duty of prohibitionists, is worthy of being pondered by his republican associates. We quote as follows:

"If politicians of diverse parties conspire to give impunity to the liquor traffic, they invite and impel prohibitionists of diverse politics to combine for the promotion of temperance. If the liquor interests rules and reigns over politics and parties, there must be a party called into existence, which they cannot rule. Nothing is more short sighted than the calculation of certain republican managers, that the liquor interest can be propitiated by them, and made subservient to their ends. * * * Prohibitionists should say to managing politicians, 'Give us candidates that we can consistently support and we will vote respectively as our politics would naturally incline us to do; but if you compel us to act against you we shall not shrink, but be faithful to our convictions.'"

Beyrass, August 10, 1859.
Dr. C. W. Rolobach—Sir: I feel anxious to tell to the world the wonderful benefit I have received from the Scandinavian blood purifier and pills. I have been troubled with dyspepsia for about thirty years, and in that time I have suffered enough to kill ten men. I have employed all the doctors in this part of the country, but they were of no use to me. I have used almost every thing in the line of patent medicines, but all for no good, until I got some of your medicines of your agents, Messrs. Fulton & Clark, since which I feel like a new man. God bless you—may they always do as much good as they have done me.

TWO LADIES IN A FIX.
A ludicrous scene occurred within a thousand miles of Louisville one night last week; we suppress names.
Two young ladies were visiting another young lady, their cousin. The three were fond of jokes, and continually played them off on each other. On the night in question, two of them attended a party; from which they returned at half past twelve o'clock. The third one remained at home, and to avoid disturbing her—for the three slept in the same bed—and others in the house, they entered through the window. Here a difficulty occurred, caused by the fact that after they left home a young Methodist minister arrived, on a visit. He was given the room occupied by the young ladies, and the one who had remained at home sat up to inform the others that different apartments had been assigned to them. She waited in the parlor for that purpose, but unluckily fell asleep; and as the young ladies did not come in by the door, but stepped into their own room by the window she slept on.

When the two entered they saw Fanny's figure, as they supposed, in bed, but were puzzled also to see by the bedside a pair of boots. The truth flushed upon them both at once. They saw it all. Fanny had set the boots in the room to give them a good scare.
They put their heads together and determined to turn the tables on her. Silently they disrobed, and as stealthily as cats they took their positions on each side of the bed. At a given signal they both jumped into bed, one on each side of the unconscious person, a laughing and screaming, "O, what a man!" they gave the poor, bewildered minister such a promiscuous hugging and tossing as few persons are able to brag of in the course of a lifetime.

The noise of this proceeding awoke the old lady, who was sleeping in an adjoining room. She comprehended the situation in a moment, and rushing to the room, she opened the door and exclaimed, "My Lord, gals, its a man; it is a man; it is a man, sure enough!" There was one prolonged, consolidated scream; a flash of muslin through the door. The best of the joke is that the minister took the whole thing in earnest. He would listen to no apologies the old woman could make for the girls. He would hear no excuse, but he solemnly folded his clerical robes around him and silently stole away.

JOSEPH BILLING'S PAPERS.
MARRIAGE.
Marriage is a fair transaction on the face of it.

But there is quite too often put up jobs in it.

It is an old institution, older than the pyramids, and as plump as hygrophicks that nobody can parse.

History holds its tongue who the pair waz who first put on the sicken harness, and promised to work kind in it, through thick and thin, up hill and down, and on the level, rain or shine, survive or perish, sink or swim, down or float.

But whoever they waz they must hav made a good thing out ov it, or so munny of their posterity would not hav harnessed up since and drove out.

There is a grate moral grip in marriage; it is the mortar that holds the social bricks together.

But there ain't but darn few pholks who put their money in matrimony, who could set down and give a good written opinyun why on earth they cum to do it.

This is a grate proof that it iz one ov them natural kind of aksidents that must happen just as birds fly out ov the nest, when they hav feathers enuff, without being able to tell why.

Sum marry for buy, and never diccover there mistake; this is lucky.

Sum marry for monny,—and

The Independent.
Two Dollars a year, in advance.
Massillon, Wednesday, March 23.
Late accounts from Columbus state that the legislature has decided in favor of having an agricultural college, or at least one branch has so voted, and the prospect is that the other will concur, if it has not already done so. This will bring up another question, and that is, where shall it be located, provided the scheme is carried out in practice? Cities and towns will now have an opportunity to ventilate their claims and bring themselves into notice throughout the state.
They are having a somewhat rough time at Richmond, Va., on account of a misunderstanding as to who is in authority there as city officers. Shooting has been carried on, and it is reported several men are killed. This sort of conduct is but the relics of the teachings and practices of slavery.
The whisky and similar influences at work in the city New York result in about one murder a week. Where there are thousands of grogshops, many of them of the lowest grade, it is certain that nothing but crime can flourish.

Mr. REVELS, the colored senator from Mississippi, on last Wednesday, made his first speech in that body. It created an immense sensation, and the hall was filled with senators, representatives, high officials, foreign diplomats, and ladies and gentlemen in less prominent walks of life. His speech discussed what is known as the Georgia question, and in it he expressed exceedingly liberal views in a candid forcible manner. The sentiments were more marked by mercy than vengeance. Such an occasion is an era in the history of our government. Twenty years ago (1850) in that same hall senators participated in enacting a law which characterized Mr. Revels and all of his class of people as chattels—now he is their peer. Then such men as Jeff Davis, Toombs and their allies were ostracized of the land, now they are self-entrusted traitors.

Mrs. Emma Hardinge, one of the finest and most successful lecturers in the ranks of the spiritualists (and they have many able speakers) lately delivered a course at Washington city. Crowded houses listened to her eloquent and learned discourses, and when her series of addresses were completed, she was asked, by a large number of members of congress, among whom were such men as Gen. Banks, of Mass., to speak on our national status and prospects. She did so on a stormy evening, and with a fifty cents admission fee had an immense crowd. The effort gave universal satisfaction to all who heard, and was regarded as a splendid success.

Some two or three weeks ago a British steamship ran into an American steamer, the Onida, and so injured the vessel that it sank in a short time. Eyre, the English captain, made no efforts to rescue the passengers or crew of the disabled vessel, left them to go to the bottom, and some 130 lives were lost. This happened near Yokohama, Japan. Late accounts say the British government have punished this murder, Eyre, by depriving him of his commission for six months!! If he ever gets on the ocean again he had better steer clear of American ports.

CHANGED.—When the proslavery party had full sway in both the state and national legislatures the democracy were very bold to the laws made by their representatives. It is not yet forgotten by some that about the year 1830 the members of the Kentucky legislature made a visit to Columbus, where the chiefs of both states united in having an immense drunken spree. Soon after that followed the enactment of the base black laws of Ohio, which made a man liable to punishment for merely employing a colored person to do any kind of work, and forbidding, so far as the impotent malice of such a law could do so, the emigration of those who were slaves in other states into Ohio. Whigs and democrats were very much alike on that question in those days.

In 1850 the infamous fugitive slave law was enacted by congress. The provisions of that abominable statute, if possible, were meaner than the Ohio black law, for any person who gave an escaping slave a piece of bread, or aided him in any manner to escape from the perdition of slavery, was liable to imprisonment and fines, even to the amount of $1000. While these laws were in force this same democracy that afterward tried to destroy the government, or spread slavery all over the territory, was fiercely loyal. Anybody who would not help carry out these disgraceful provisions they were ready to prosecute, and even mob, as hundreds and thousands who were then victims can well remember.

These reminders seem pertinent just now, and for this reason: The fifteenth amendment has about become the law of the land, and an important provision in it is, beside making all men equal politically, that congress is to see that this feature of the constitution is to be carried out by appropriate legislation. A law has been drafted in which penalties are prescribed against violations of this just and humane provision; and this is nothing more than right—justice demands it. In parts of the southern states where those murderous kluks are in power, they are malicious enough to stop at no common obstacle to sate their malice and vent their hate against the black population, and do all they can to deter them from voting. Hundreds of facts establish this state of mind. What do we see now in those soil democratic papers—that is, loyal to the former Ohio black laws and more infamous fugitive slave law—in regard to this needed congressional enactment? Why they perfectly howl with rage against the law merely because it aims to sustain equal rights. That is all that is the matter. We say, let them howl!

PUBLIC MEETING.
According to previous notice a public meeting was held at Erwin's school house (between East Greenville and Dalton) on Saturday evening, March 12th, 1870, to make a public donation to J. G. Dague of the costs and fine and imposed on him by the Probate Court of Stark Co., and also protest against the malicious prosecution, and the injustice done him and community in the manner the case was disposed of. On motion Mr. John Erwin was appointed chairman, and Joseph Oberlin secretary. After the chairman having stated the object of the meeting Mr. Stinson moved that a committee of five be appointed to draft a preamble and resolutions. The chairman appointed Messrs. James Stinson, David Rudy, Samuel M. Anderson, Wm. Cully and Wm. Oberlin said committee. While the committee were preparing the resolutions Mr. A. R. Hanna was appointed to make the tender to Mr. Dague, which he did by saying: "I hold in my hand the amount of the costs and fine so wrongfully imposed on you, contributed by the public as a vindication of your innocence and a rebuke against the gross outrage committed upon you and community. Please accept it also as a token of our sympathy for you, and as a pledge from the public that it will stand by the right. Nothing, perhaps, was ever presented to the public that was so generally acquiesced in, irrespective of party or creed. Prominent among the contributors you will find the Rev. Semple and Stier, Drs. Roebuck and Snodgrass, the Erwins the Rudys the Cullys, the McDowells, the Foutzes and R. Sellers of Wayne Co. The Andersons, the Fickes, the Steeles and Christmans of Stark Co., all feeling conscious of having done nothing but what duty impelled us to do. I add no more." Mr. Dague came forward and accepted the donation by a few appropriate remarks, thanking the donors for their spontaneous and unsolicited aid and sympathy.
The following resolutions were unanimously adopted. Preamble.
WHEREAS, J. G. Dague (a school teacher) was in our opinion legally arrested for assault and battery. We also believe that the affidavit filed for said arrest was concocted in a spirit of hatred, malice and revenge, for the purpose of gratifying a malicious and revengeful spirit, in the school district. Therefore Resolved, That his persecution in our opinion was malicious and uncalled for.
Resolved, That the justice that held Dague to answer said charge in the Probate Court of Stark Co., grossly erred in stating that in his opinion the punishment was too severe.
Resolved, That we believe that said Dague had great injustice done him in the prosecution in said court. That the court erred in delivering his charge to the jury, claiming that public opinion is fast becoming opposed to corporal punishment in our schools and he hoped the time would soon come when it would be abolished.
Resolved, That public opinion in advance of law should have nothing to do with charges of courts to juries or their decisions.
Resolved, That we believe that Mr. Dague and the public have sustained a great injury by the manner in which the case was disposed of, and its effects upon our common schools and baneful.
On motion it was resolved that the proceedings of this meeting be published in the Stark and Wayne county papers.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS.
More than 50,000 persons bear testimony to their curative effects.
For Female Complaints, whether in old or young, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or the turn of life, these tonic bitters have no equal. Send for a circular.
What are They?
They are a gentle purgative as well as a tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving congestion or inflammation of the liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

THEY ARE NOT A FINE FANCY DRINK.
Made of poor rum, whisky, proof spirits, and refuse liquor, doctored, spiced, and sweetened to please the taste, called tonic and appetizers, restorers, &c., that lead the uper on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true medicine, made from the native roots and herbs of California, free from all alcoholic stimulants.
They are the great blood purifier and life giving principle, a perfect renovator and invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisons, matter, and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell.
$1.00 will be given for an incurable case, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poisons or other means, and the vital organs saved beyond the point of repair.
For inflammatory and chronic rheumatism, and gonorrhea, dyspepsia, or indigestion, bilious, remittent, and intermittent fevers, disease of the blood, liver, kidneys and bladder, these bitters have been most successful. Such diseases are caused by vitiated blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the digestive organs.
Cleanse and vitiate blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, eruptions or sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when you find it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.
Pin, tace, and other worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed.
In bilious, remittent and intermittent fevers, these bitters have no equal. For full directions read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

CAHOON'S Patent Broadcast Seed Sower, FOR SOWING Wheat, Oats, Hemp, Barley, Rye, Buckwheat, Grass Seed, Rice, Flax, &c.

The hand machine, at a common walking gait, sows from four to eight acres per hour at a common walking gait, throwing out wheat about forty feet wide.
The horse power machine costs only $50
And at the usual walking gait of a horse, sows from ten to fifteen acres per hour. By changing the discharger this machine sows Guano, Plaster, Lime, &c.
The hand machine, at a common walking gait, sows from four to eight acres per hour. The acknowledged superiority of these machines over all others has already placed them in the front rank of labor saving agricultural implements. A saving of four fifths of the labor, and one third of the seed used in hand sowing, is effected by using these machines. A person entirely unused to sowing by hand can use either machine with perfect success.
They are warranted to give perfect satisfaction, and to save their cost in less time than any farm implement yet introduced. They are substantially built, and with ordinary care will last many years.
D. H. COODELL & CO., SOLE MANUFACTURERS. Antrim, New Hampshire.

The unprecedented success of this Seeder the past year is without parallel in the history of agricultural implements. It has probably received more first premiums at large fairs in the year 1869, than was ever awarded to any other machine, of any name, or nature in one year.
It received the first premium at the great fair held at St. Louis, and at the New England fair held at Portland, Maine, and at the New York, Maryland, North Carolina, Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Mississippi, and California State Fairs, and at multitudes of smaller fairs all over the country.
We warrant the hand machine to sow Fifty Acres of Wheat in Ten Hours, and the horse power machine to sow One Hundred and Twenty Acres in the same time, and the work to be done with greater precision and accuracy than can be done by any other machine whatever.
We might append hundreds of certificates, speaking its praise in the highest terms.

SALEM, OHIO, November 15, 1899.
We are acquainted with Lewis Schilling, Esq., grower of Ramsdell's Norway Oats, and know him to have grown a very superior oat known as Ramsdell's Norway; it being the same oats distributed by Jones & Clark, of New York city, who were Ramsdell's agents. Mr. Schilling has been one of our successful dry goods merchants, and we believe his statements to be entirely reliable. The public who favor him with orders will be justly dealt with.
JOS. H. HOLDS, Cashier First National Bank.
ALEXANDER POW, President First National Bank.
J. K. RUCKENBRO, Editor Salem Republican.

Mr. Ramsdell has offered me a large price for all the seed I have; but as I have time to attend to the distribution of it myself, I have not accepted his offer. I hold that a good thing is just as good for this section as for any other part of the world, and if the seed is shipped to New York our farmers are not likely to get it back again, and will not reap the benefit from its early introduction. Rugged toiler, son of labor, Gather in life's precious day,
Be undaunted, oh my brother, Cast all gloomy fears away.

Life is but a vast arena,
But a mighty contest ring, Where all true and earnest action Will a glorious guerion bring.

Only those who're strong and dauntless—Those who boldly do and dare—May, at last, obtain a victory And the wreath of glory wear.

Wealth and station, fame and honor Are the stations you may gain—Are the bright and dazzling prizes Strewed around the contest plain.

Cast away the dreamy shackles Binding down the soul and mind; Labor, labor, in inaction, Strength, new strength, you'll never find.

As the streamlet growth broader,
Running downward to the sea,
So will labor make you stronger, Give you manly dignity.

Train your powers to do your bidding, Till they're true as subtle steel; Then will men, your weaker brothers, Own the influence that they feel.

Then will love, and grace, and beauty Gladly in your presence wait; While a world repeats the praises Of the truly brave and great.

O! be free, and strong, and dauntless, Be in earnest truth, a man;
In each high and worthy movement Keeping ever in the van.

There's a dignity in labor; There's a God-like power within Every man, that will enable Him the prize he seeks, to win.
Never weary, never falter, Hoping, toiling, battling still,
Noble brother and remember You can conquer if you will.
